CORNPLANTER, TOME, Labree, Morrison, Marshall, English, Gil-lam, and others crossed this valley in the days when Kinzie was no more than two or three clearings, and Aaron Burr was looking for recruits with which to found an empire. Now it is for sale and the government is buying land and buildings to make way for the new dam and the lake behind it, Kinzie residents will meet with a govern-ment representative Tuesday eve-ning to discuss the problems in-volved.

KINZIE UP FOR SALE

The little community of Kinzie and all neighboring property, including Corydon, now has the problem of selling its land and buildings to the government so that the new dam can be construct-ed. This suggests that many old landmarks soon will be removed or covered by water.

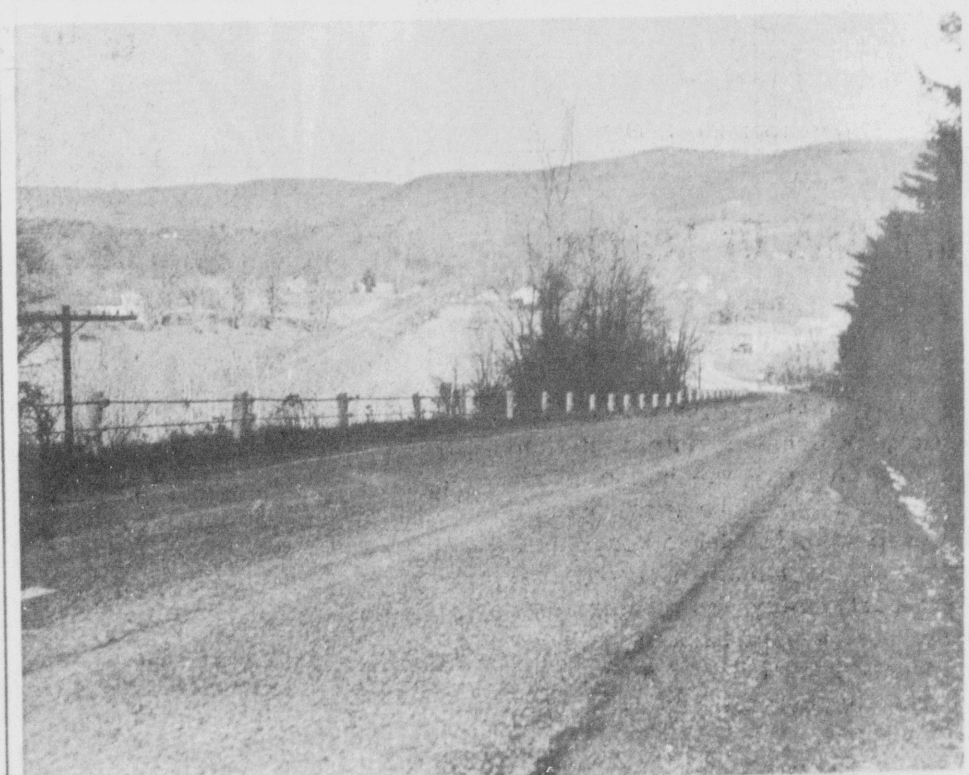

This week we took a few pictures of the Kinzie area and wrote a short piece about its origin and a few of its early settlers. Most of the pictures are in this issue. We will use others with appropriate stories in later editions.

INSIDE THIS ISSUE:

Final Days Of Kenque

(Bob Walsh)

A Place of Many Fish or Fish-on-a-stick, whichever interpretation you wish to give the Indian word Kenque, soon may be at the bottom of a deep lake. The legend says that one group of Indians shagged another party away from their fish dinner near Kinzua back in the days of mountain trails and canoes. The raiders ate their fill and called the place Kenque.

One of the early settlers of that area, Philip Tome, wrote a book about his experiences in the wilderness, "Pioneer Life or Thirty Years a Hunter". In the book he called it Kenzua.

Tome was the first settler of Corydon. He resided in Kinzua about 1816, and served as a hunter and interpreter. He died in 1855 and was buried with his wife in Corydon. Kinzua was officially organized as a township in 1821.

In this deep valley through which the Indians roamed, hunted, settled, and from which they made their raids into other territory, much legend and history twines together in many stories of the past. Aaron Burr is supposed to have stopped there about 1805, shortly after he killed Alexander Hamilton. He was on his way to the west where he thought he would create an empire, but he needed help and is supposed to have urged early valley residents, including the Morrisons, to join him. He camped on the Morrison island, but they resisted his offers, fed him, and sent him on his way.

James Morrison, one of the many revolutionary soldiers who played a major role in settling this area, came to Warren in 1799. He made his home on an island near Kinzua in 1801. His descendants were leaders in the milling business and the settling of the Kinzua valley. He died in 1839.

Probably the biggest landowner in the Kinzua section during the early days (other than the Indians) was Smith Labree, the second, who came there in 1815. He owned most of the land which now comprises Kinzua, and he made his living lumbering and as a pilot. When he arrived there were only two small clearings besides a large one made by the Indians. There were no roads. Travel was by water or foot. Labree was born in 1797 and lived until 1860. In that span he saw the area become settled and prosperous.

There are many early names in the history of Corydon and Kinzua, such as Enoch Gillam who built the first mill in Corydon, and Sim-eon Marsh, the Revolutionary soldier from New Jersey who died in Kinzua in 1825.

These and many more are the white men who built the valley into a hustling lumbering center where rafts were made up for the long trips downstream. Later oil came into the valley and still offers a small flow from a few wells. Lumbering also continues but its income is a smattering compared with the virgin days.

Those days of industry and civilization would have been impossible without friendly Indians. At least they would have been much more costly and longer in coming. The peaceful existence near Indians who treasured their land was made possible by Chief Cornplanter. Because of his great influence and his willingness to utilize it for the benefit of the new and struggling nation he was rewarded with tracts of land by Pennsylvania and his name has been honored and revered.

The story of Chief Cornplanter is a saga in itself upon which we will not dwell in this limited account.

And what of the future for these parts? It is wet!

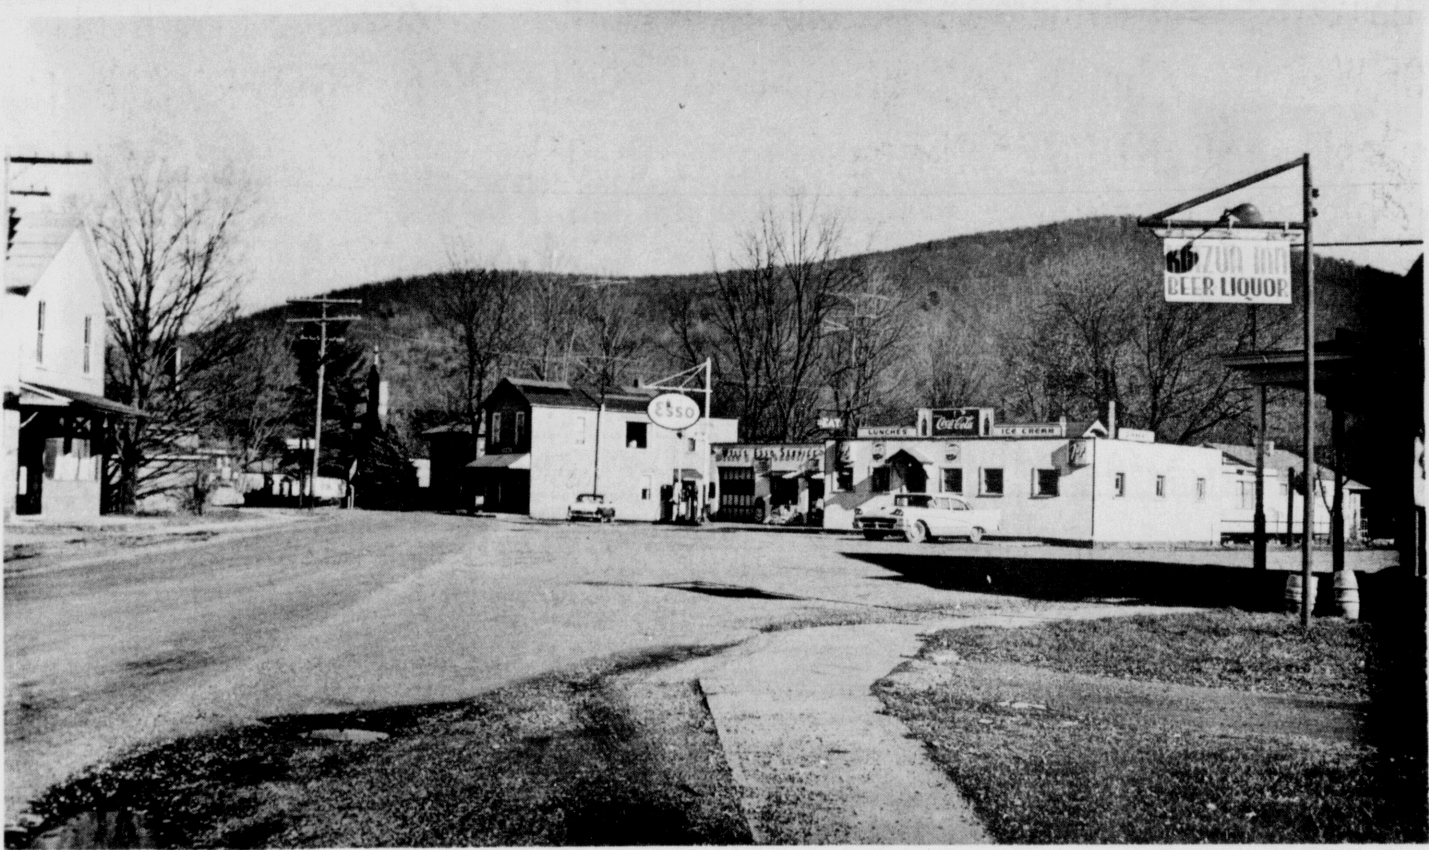

About the only safe landmark with the name Kinzua attached to it is comparatively new and is owned by a descendant of families who came to Kinzua in the late 19th century period. It is the Kinzua golf course, owned by Les Sheldon, whose grandfather started the Sheldon Handle Company in 1881.

Some of the lower holes will be submerged but it will be possible to extend the course up onto the ridge. It will be close to the new highway and in a perfect setting. Inasmuch as the future of the area is very much associated with recreation, it is fitting that a facility with the Kinzua name may prove one of the central attractions.

On the east slope the national foresters will develop the area for campers, fishermen, boaters, picnickers and others. The west slope is in the hands of private owners and unless a zoning plan is effected soon this can have a detrimental effect on the proper development of the lake land.

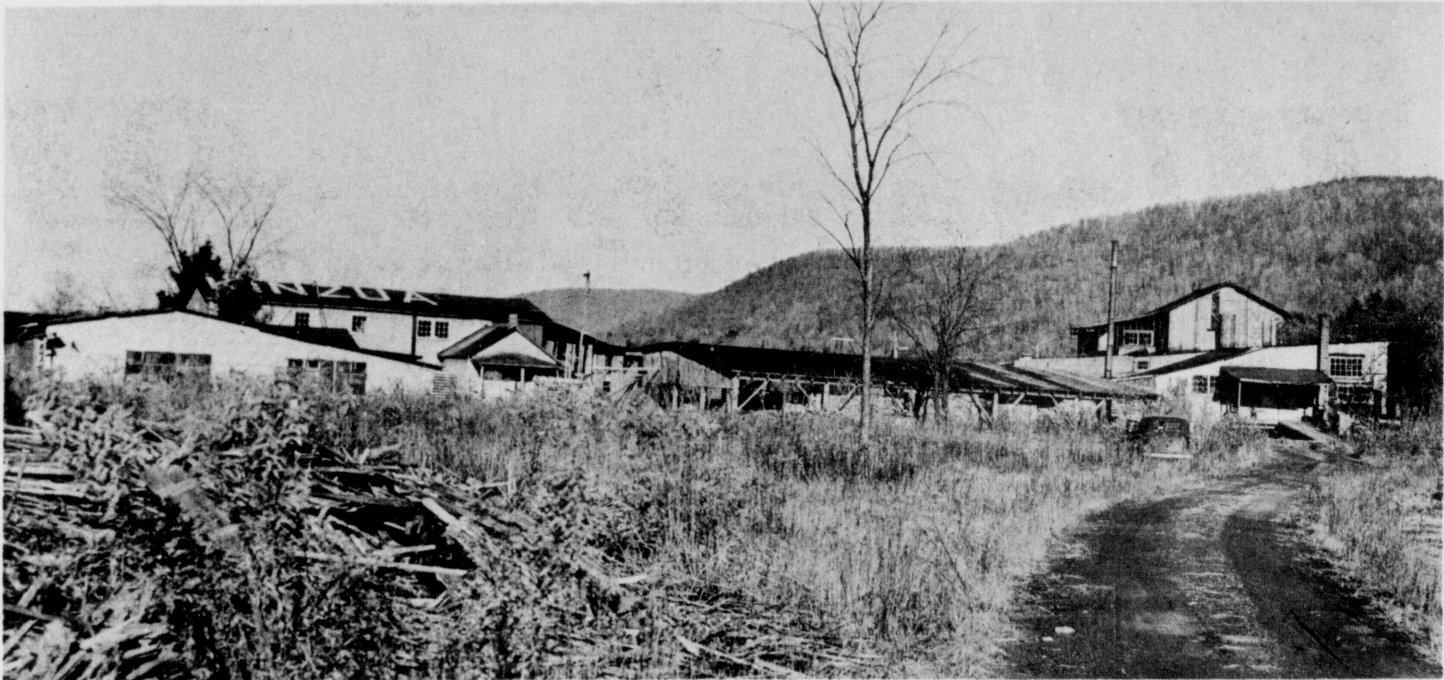

The valley that spewed lumber to the world by way of its river and later sent oil down the stream is about to play a key part in the control and proper use of the Allegheny. In it will be constructed the dam that will tame the waters, cleanse them, protect lives and property, aid river transportation, and provide a recreational paradise. Unprecedented prosperity may result, and it will be of a much more lasting quality than that derived from lumber and oil booms of the past.

The hungry Indian who feasted off the repast left by his victims spoke wisely. His legendary description of this valley of Cornplanters, Tomes, and Labrees may come to fruition. Back of that dam you can truly say will be A Place of Many Fish. From Kenque it came, and to Kenque it is about to return.

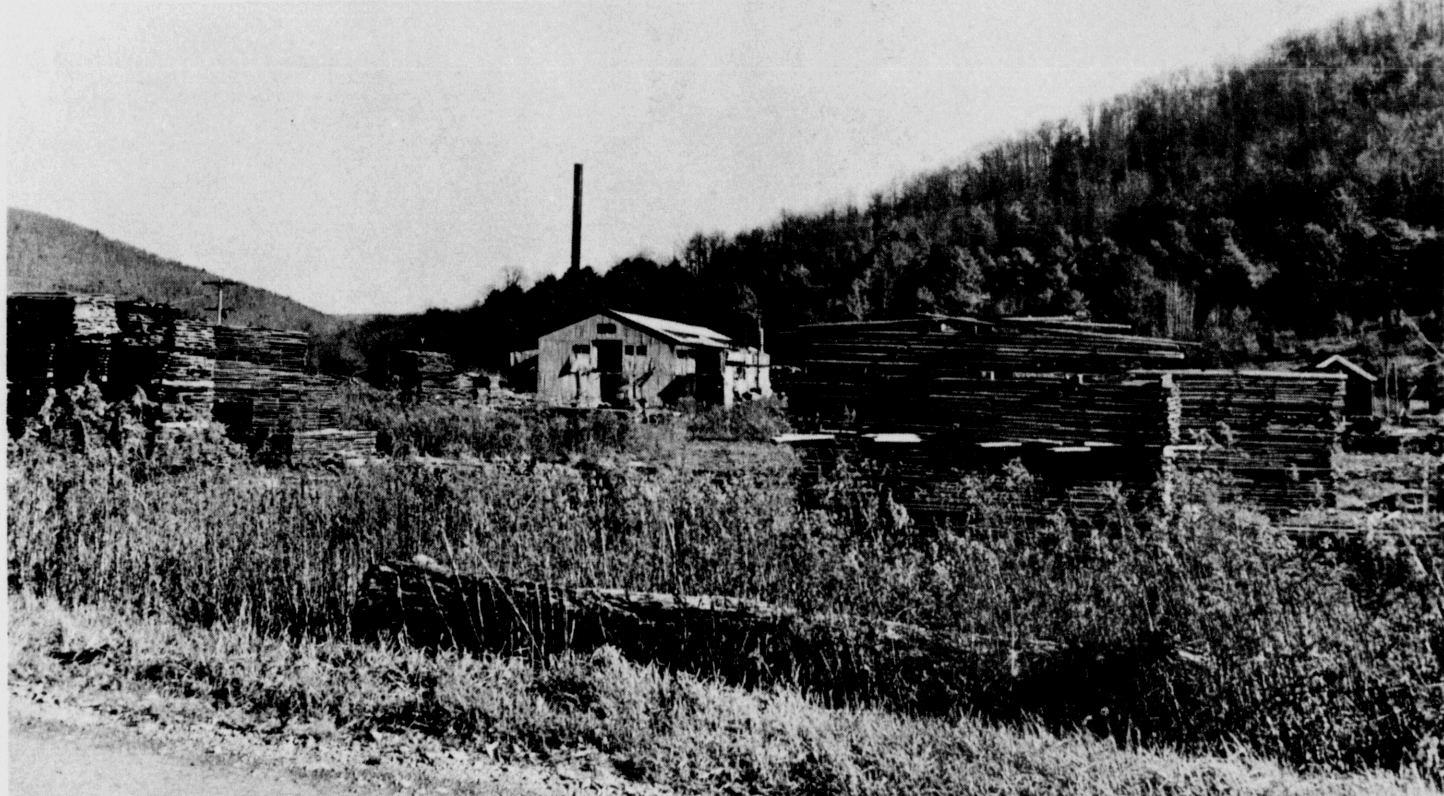

Entering Kinzua's business section. At the right is the Kinzua Inn, then a street intersection, followed in order by a restaurant, an Esso station, the post office, a home, and St. Luke's Episcopal church. Farther on, and out of the picture, are the Methodist church and the Hall hardware store, which appears to be the biggest store in town.

Kinzua's industry is not extensive. Here, grouped together, are the Sheldon Handle Co. and the Sheldon-Wells Co. The Sheldons founded the original handle plant in 1888.

This mill above Kinzua logs in the winter and saws in the summer. Seen here is no more than what is left after most of the season's work has been shipped. It is owned by an Ohioan, Mr. Barrett.

AN OLD ONE is this elementary school which has served Kinzua and its neighbors for many years. It still is in use, but soon will have no customers as families move from their flooded land and seek new homes.

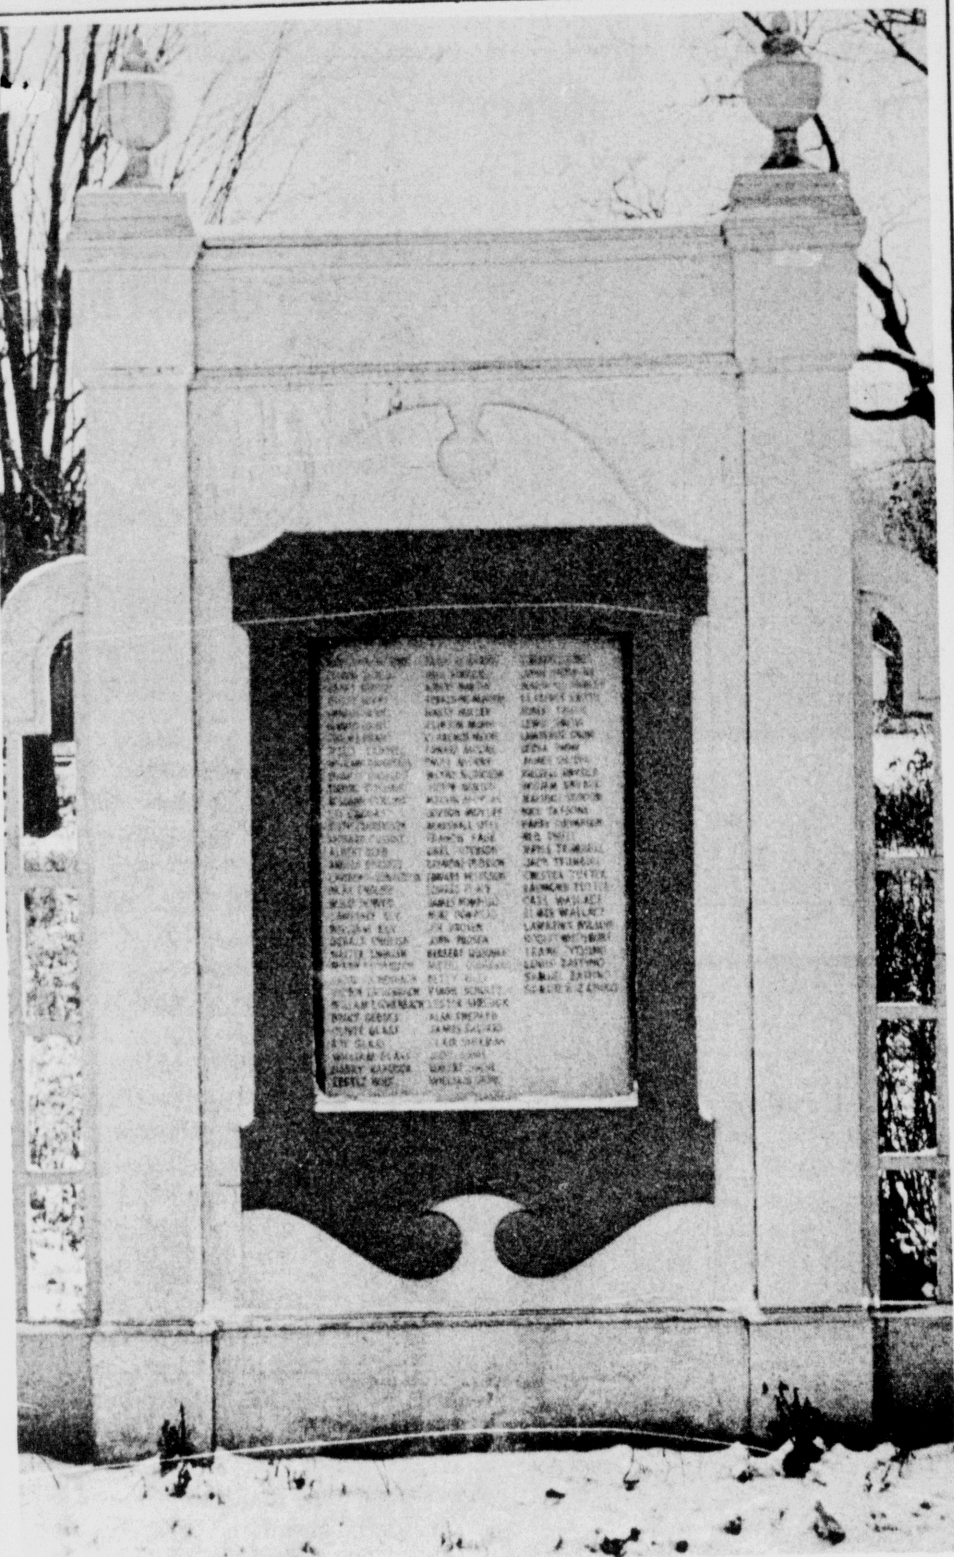

THE NARROW BRIDGE which crosses Kinzua creek and has been the center of many controversies soon will be under rather than over water. At its left side is a foot bridge, and on the far side is a dirt road which turns right and takes you to the Kinzua golf course which will be partially eliminated by the Kinzua lake.

KENQUE'S MEANING in one of its many versions appears on a sign north of the creek bridge.

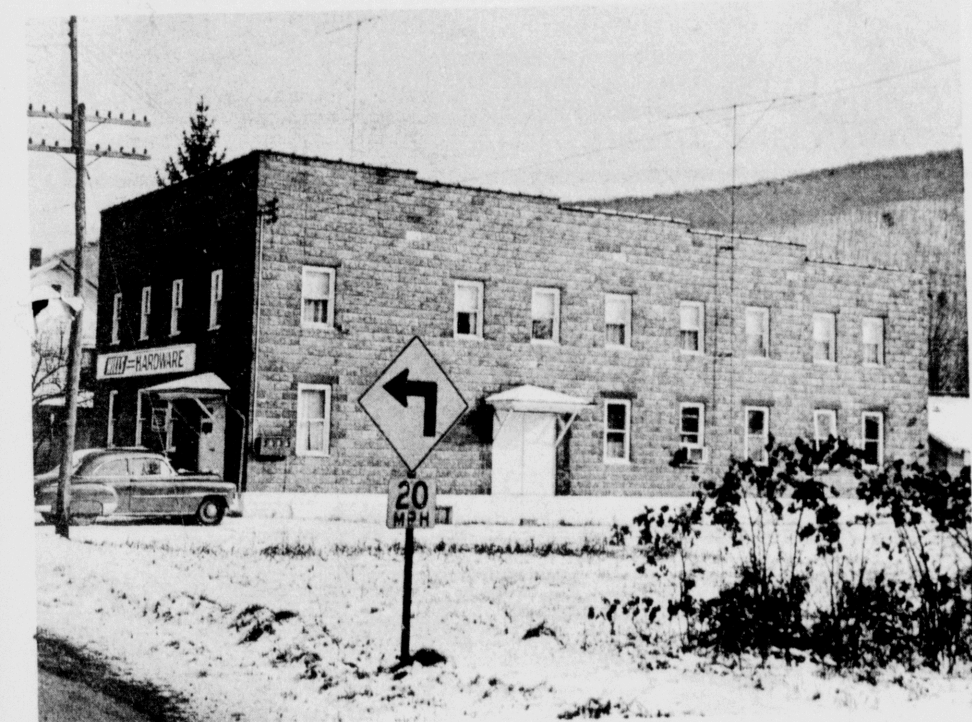

KINZUA PLAYED ITS PART and paid its share of the toll. Among the names are those of old families who stocked the area.

FIRST TO GO. This is the first property to be bought by the government in preparation for the construction of the Kinzua dam, or whatever name it will be given. The home belongs to Wayne C. Grant, Jr., and Robinell Grant. It is located at the foot of the slope leading to the elbow where tourists have stopped for many years to view the valley and eventually will view a lake. Some of the early purchases are made to provide work space and to ease the movement of highways and utilities.

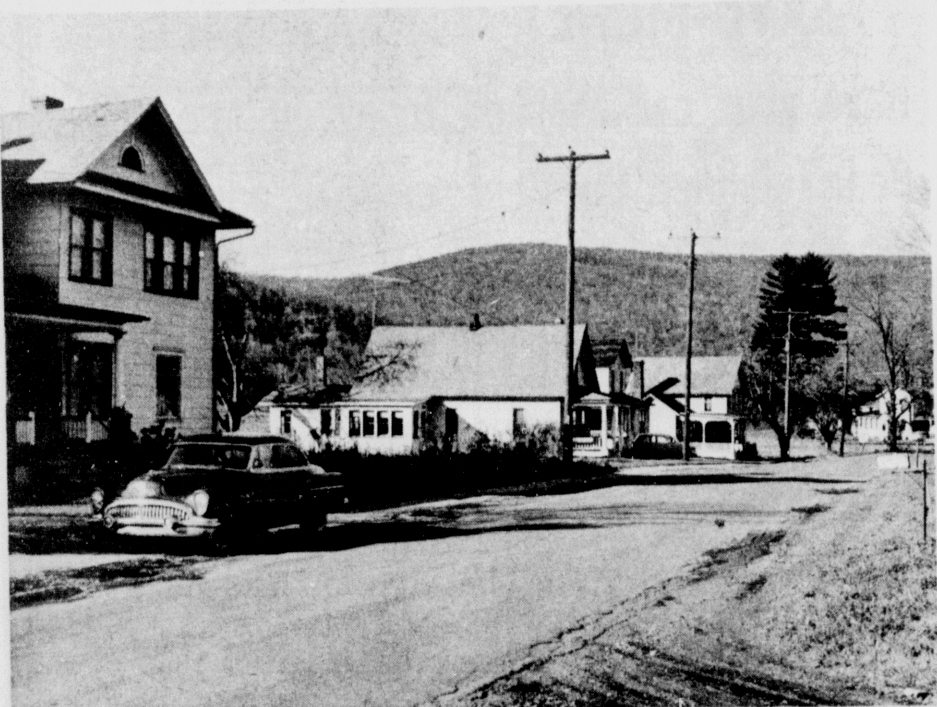

One of Kinzua's quiet side streets with the Inn at the intersection.

THE BIGGEST STORE in town

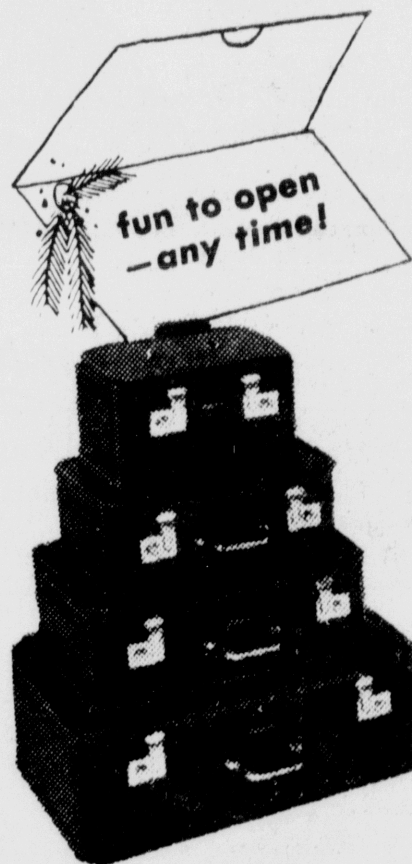

At the left after you pass the main intersection you see this row of buildings in Kinzua. There are two homes then the Fred F. Burrows Barber Shop, and the Wilcox Grocery.

ACROSS THE TRACKS and on your way up the river you see these Kinzua homes.

AIR POLLUTION CANCER

Among the heaviest smokers in the world are the whites in South Africa. Yet their incidence of lung cancer is lower than the British.

However, the increase of lung cancer in South Africa in the past ten years has been so rapid that the disease now is double what it was in 1949. In this same period industrialization has made great strides in South Africa and the death rate from cancer is growing rapidly in the cities.

British immigrants also have a higher rate of lung cancer, and this is believed to be due to the atmosphere of the cities from which they came. The deduction is that cigarette smokers may have a high percentage of lung cancer, but they have an even higher rate if they constantly breath polluted city air.

Again we suggest that some kind of air control is urgently needed in all our industrialized cities. We cannot afford to take no action.

CHRISTMAS ADVICE

The Consumer Reports magazine of November offers a useful guide to buying presents this year. Not only does it picture a large number of items, which in itself may give you some ideas for either asking or giving, but it also rates what it thinks is a top buy in each case.

ARE YOU REPORTING?

If you are a housewife with a helper you may be violating the law if you are not reporting your payments to the Director of Internal Revenue. If a helper earns as little as $4 a week it is more than $50 a quarter and must be reported.

Reporting the social security payments is not difficult. A form is provided which is a part of an envelope. The housewife enters the worker's name, social security number, and total cash earnings. She then puts a check or money order in the pocket to cover the tax and mails it. The tax rate is 2-1/2 per cent for the employee and 2-1/2 per cent for the employer. It will increase to 3 per cent on January 1.

If the help is employed by someone else it makes no difference. Anyone so employed should make sure this is being done because this is the only way they can establish retirement and other benefits for themselves and their dependents.

NEW PRO

There will be a new golf professional at the Conewango Valley Country Club next spring. Fred Lindstrom has resigned and as the news of the vacancy becomes more extensively known the trail to the lucrative pro shop position becomes a little more crowded with applicants.

NO BASKETBALL

For a few days we thought Warren county might be due for the best basketball it has seen in many years. It looked as though the Warren Y city loop wouldn't make it. This concentrated the talent in a pair of teams, and if town teams could have been formed in three or four outside communities the competition would have been keen.

Sheffield is organizing and Tidoute's baseball club this past summer talked about forming a court squad. Youngsville and Northern Area might be talked into it. With fairly good floors available in all corners the action might have been worth watching.

DATED CRITICISM

Most critics, we suspect, understandably must find days when it is difficult to fill space. Several recent reviews of television plays apparently have strained at finding something to attack and have lamented the aged origin of the plot.

Because the action may have taken place in a situation that fitted the early part of this century or the latter part of the past the plays have been criticized. On this basis we never should watch a Shakespeare production, or any of the works turned out by the early masters.

There are people who will agree with this approach and do not wish to watch what they choose to call "costume" plays. But for a critic, who is supposed (we think) to improve the taste of the viewing public so that it will appreciate the best, this is a type of review which is as common as the opinions which most of them condemn and lament.

HOLE-IN-ONE

His fourteenth hole-in-one was scored a few days ago by Lionel Callaway while he was opening the new course which he will serve this winter in Lauderdale, Fla. He plopped a seven iron into the 148-yard ninth hole's cup of the Lauderdale Lakes Country Club. Lionel owns and operates a pitch-and-putt course on Lake Chautauqua.

In Brief

DAM MEETING. Attorneys have talked to Kinzua residents in regard to what they might be able to do to help the business man be reimbursed by the government for his business as well as property, now the citizenry wants to hear the government's side of the story.

A meeting for this purpose has been called for 7:30 next Tuesday night in the Kinzua Fire Hall, when representatives of the Army Engineers will be present.

It seems that several business places in the area have been offered a price for their property but are offered nothing for the business they are operating and will have to leave with the construction of the Kinzua Dam.

TO STATE CONVENTION. Fred Mack, Peter Scalise, Marvin Wensel, Harold Check, Jesse King and Jack Henry will attend the Penna. State Employees' Council convention at Harrisburg this week end. They will represent Warren State Hospital Local 469.

EVENING MISHAP. An accident occurred last evening about 7:45 p. m. on Route 957 near Lander. A car operated by Robert Davis, R. D. 3, Jamestown, which was travelling east on the highway, left the pavement and went into a ditch. About $100 damage resulted, but the driver was not injured.

NEW LINE. Sugar Grove Farm Supply in Sugar Grove announces that their firm is now handling sales and service on the new line of Knipco Portable Heaters manufactured by Knipco, Inc., Dayton, Ohio.

This dealer also handles Knipco's larger, thermostatically controlled, heaters.

TO JAMBOREE. The twelve boys registered to take the cross-country trip to Colorado Springs and the Boy Scout Jamboree in July are Gary Borton, Steve Summers, Charles Brown, Michael Brennan, Bill Lombard, Jerry Shepard, George Mattison, Jack Bufton, James Haslet, John Lindberg, Dave Sampson, and one other to be selected.

IN THE COLLEGES. The Dickinson College Chapter of Omicron Delta Kappa, honorary leadership society, has elected Stanley V. Lindberg, 1410 Pennsylvania ave., E., Warren, to membership.

MEN IN SERVICE. Pvt. Gerry Archibald, Warren, has been assigned to Co. C, 17th Specialist Battalion, 4th Training Regiment at Fort Jackson, for advanced specialist training in Intermediate Speed Radio Operator's Course.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Archibald, 403 Quaker rd., Warren.

NEXT WEEK marks the start of the annual YMCA membership drive.

THE MAIL EARLY FOR CHRISTMAS campaign has already been started with view that the 1959 Christmas season may set an all time mailing record.

Plan your Christmas card and gift mailings now. Check your Christmas card and gift lists very carefully -- make sure each address includes full name, street and number, city, zone and state. You can avoid delays when the Christmas rush is on by stocking up now on heavy wrapping paper, sturdy corrugated cartons, strong cord, and paper adhesive tape. The postmaster suggests you secure pamphlet No. 2 at the Post Office, giving you full information about proper packaging and wrapping of parcels for mailing. Now is the time to buy extra stamps and to secure free labels from the Post Office which read "All For Local Delivery" and "All For Out of Town Delivery" so that you can speed delivery of your Christmas cards by sorting them into two groups with the addresses all facing one way. Use only first class, four cent postage, on your Christmas cards. Include your return address on every Christmas card envelope. Christmas cards and gifts for most distant points should be mailed first, well before December 10th. Those gifts for nearby points should be mailed by December 15th and all cards by at least a week before Christmas.

CENSUS TAKERS for this area in the 1959 Census of Agriculture have been appointed and will begin an intensive training course on Farm Census in preparation for the start of the field canvass on Monday.

They are Gerald G. Bensink, Lloyd R. Price, Mrs. Pauline R. Sarvis, David R. Anderson, Seth A. Holmes, Charles A. Duff, Mrs. Charlotte M. Sheldon and Mrs. Winifred Niemann.

Can Diplomats Commit Murder?

By Inez Robb

How many Americans, I wonder, realized until recently that diplomatic immunity extended to murder? That it literally permitted diplomats, their sisters and their cousins and their aunts, to get away with murder?

We ordinary squares who live in New York are well aware that diplomatic immunity allows anyone with a diplomatic license tag to triple park, park in front of a fire plug, park in "No Parking" areas, speed and, in general, ignore all the rules and courtesies of the road. (These are facts of which the ordinary citizens of Washington, D.C., have been aware for decades.)

But it must have come as a shock to millions, as it did to me, that the grown son of an ambassador -- a man with a police record for brawling and disorderly conduct -- can kill a woman in the streets of Washington and walk away.

If the comparable son of an American ambassador drove an automobile in such a manner that it killed a middle-aged woman in the streets of Paris, Rome, Cairo, New Delhi, Tokyo or Manila, God help Uncle Sam! It doesn't require much imagination to picture what would happen.

If the killer took refuge in diplomatic immunity, there would be anti-American riots in the streets and, in all probability, mobs stoning the American Embassy.

Communist propagandists would make a Roman holiday of such imperialist behavior on the part of the flower of capitalist society.

News media around the world would scream the house down with denunciations of the American way and our undisciplined behavior. Our careless disregard of the lives of "native" people would make stirring editorial fodder.

There would be loud and persistent demands that the American ambassador be declared persona non grata.

If Uncle Sam, under the circumstances, did not recall the ambassador before the host government made such a request, it seems incredible that the ambassador himself would not be sufficiently sensitive to resign. Or, lacking that grace, would not feel impelled at the very least to send his son packing back to his homeland.

By the time this sees print, I would hope that the United States Government and the State Department have discovered their respective backbones and hinted to Ireland, if that country has failed to act, that the Irish Ambassador, John J. Hearne, and his delinquent son, David, 21, are no longer welcome in the United States.

If the sins of the father are visited upon his children even until the third and fourth generation, the rule works in reverse, too. Ambassador Hearne may be the finest diplomat in the nation's capital. But he, as both ambassador and father, is responsible for his son's behavior. And that behavior, for the past 30 months, is a matter of police record. Only 48 hours before the son's car struck and killed Mrs. Jossie Hamlin, 54, the State Department sent to the ambassador a lengthy police report on his son's brawling.

I have waited in vain to hear the killer express so much as one word of regret over the death of his victim. Apparently young Hearne believes that in ordering his insurance adjusters to confer with the dead woman's attorney, he has done all that is necessary. He had neither the courage nor the remorse to stand up at the woman's funeral and say, "I'm sorry."

Castro Is Asking For Trouble

WASHINGTON. -- Fidel Castro of Cuba is playing with dynamite -- American Congressional dynamite. Not even the stoic patience of the State Department is likely to save him from being blown right out of office by his own recklessness unless he draws back soon from his shrilly abusive course toward the United States.

This two-bit (or half-peso) dictator is nearing the point of no return. The whole position toward Castro here is now changing. It is increasingly probable that Congress will return in January determined to take counteraction that could easily destroy his revolutionary regime.

True, the State Department will try to discourage this sort of thing. But as it happens the critical power here does not lie with the Administration. Nor does it lie with the Congressional Committee on Foreign Policy, which normally will follow any Administration lead.

It lies instead with two fairly hard-boiled groups which are never unduly impressed by "State" -- and which are fed to the teeth with Fidel Castro. These are the Finance Committee of the United States Senate and the Committee on Agriculture of the House of Representatives.

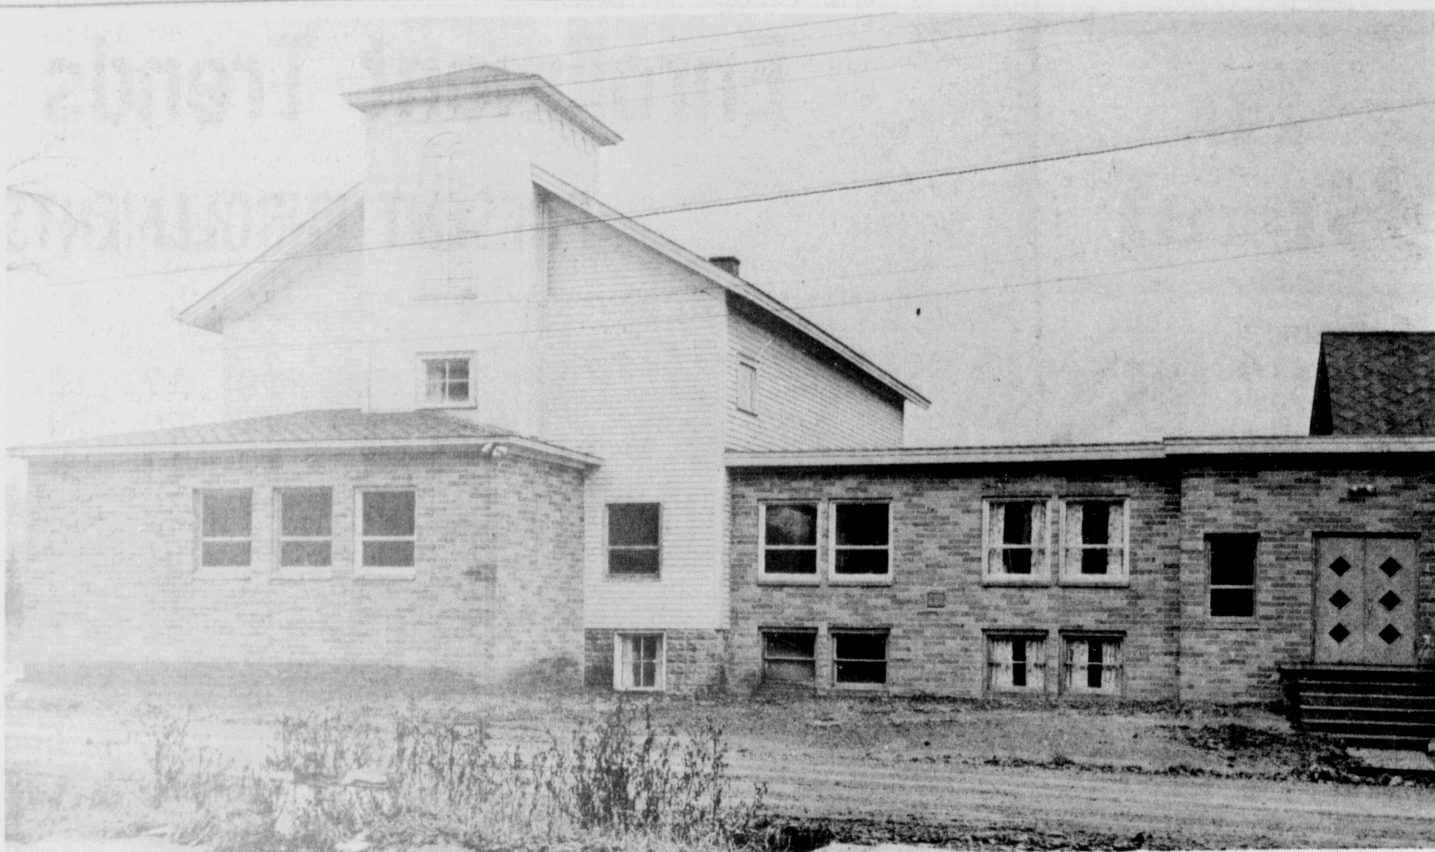

They have it within their choice to cut off Cuba's rich sugar-exporting quota to the United States. This quota not only guarantees a stable market to the Cubans but also gives them a price pegged above the world price. The sugar quota is at the heart of Cuba's life. Not even the most stirring of "great revolutionary leaders" is excessively popular at home once his policies bring joblessness and economic ruin.

Congress alone can decide whether the expiring Sugar Quota Act is to be renewed as to Cuba. It can decide, too, on a renewal giving some of our Latin-American friends, notably Mexico, a much larger share of our imports.

If this should happen -- and powerful Congressional forces are resolved that it shall happen unless Castro changes his tune -- what then? Castro will have opportunity to find the alternative sugar market he has threatened to find with the Soviet bloc.

By all means -- say Congressional authorities such as Senator George Smathers of Florida, a long-proved friend of Cuba -- let Castro try. For instead of an eager Soviet customer he will discover one of those dull facts of life of the kind hot-eyed revolutionaries so often overlook. This is that the Russians produce all the sugar (beet sugar) they need, and a little more besides.

Nobody here, it should be emphasized, wants to be forced to take economic sanctions against Cuba, such as already are publicly suggested by Senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana. But this, too, should be emphasized: significant power centers in Congress don't go along with the State Department theory that regardless of provocation we must not take such action lest we injure ourselves with all Latin America.

The view of Congressmen most concerned with, and most important in, this issue is far different. There comes a time, they say, when it is more harmful to withhold action than to act. For nothing could be so bad as for the United States to confirm the existing notion that no conceivable insult will be effectively resented here. This kind of posture would lead to the justifiable conclusion all through Pan America that the one sure way to a permanently - guaranteed favorable treatment by the U. S. would be to be always at the very forefront of its abusers and enemies.

This is not "dollar diplomacy." Nor is it any jingo attitude. Nobody here argues that we are always right in our difficulties with our Latin-American neighbors. We are, for illustration, far from spotless in regard to Panama. Anti-American feeling there is in part understandable.

But the point simply is that nobody can possibly be the kind of "good neighbor" Castro wants. For he wants to walk all over us, in the happy belief that we are too big to retaliate, while we continue to support his economy -- and thus him.

THE DEDICATION-DAY SERVICE for the new educational unit, parsonage and remodeled church of the Bear Lake Evangelical United Brethren Church will be held at 11 a.m. Sunday, November 22. Open house will be observed at the parsonage and Sunday school building from four to six o'clock in the afternoon.

HISTORY

The history of the Bear Lake Class goes back to the year 1852 when the name first appears in a list of appointments in what was then called the "New York Mission".

According to the dedication program, on September 3, 1853, William Cadman was the minister in charge. In September 1855 the Quarterly Conference met at Bear Lake and voted unanimously to change the name from "New York Mission" to "Bear Lake Circuit".

From 1852 until 1874 the members worshipped in the school house a mile east of the present village. In 1874 the new church was built on its present site and was dedicated in December by Bishop Edwards.

The Rev. C. E. Dibble was appointed to the charge in 1917 and continued for three years. Ministers serving the church in the years following were the Reverends F. D. Fuller, C. C. Grover, Mulvin, W. D. Fullom, Walter Black, A. L. Pang, Roger D. Morey, I. W. Barrett, F. Eugene Donelson, Byron Berry, H. F. Reagle, Cecil E. Ross, Harry Andorf, A. L. Pang (returned), Gerald M. Lundeen.

The Rev. Burkett Smith, the present pastor, came to the church in 1957. In 1958 the building committee negotiated a trade with Truman Davis and the parsonage was exchanged for the present property. Plans were laid and in April of this year the remodeling of the church proper and the beginning of the new educational unit were started. The Youth Center on the opposite side of town was purchased in 1958 and opened for community and church use in 1959.

This year the church was incorporated under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania.

* FINISHED

The remodeled church, new educational unit and parsonage to be dedicated Sunday are now finished. The estimated cost, $2600.

IMMORALITY OF WAR

John Hersey has an imposing list of books to his credit which have earned for him a foremost position among writers of his generation. His first effort in 1943, "Into the Valley," was followed by the well-remembered "Bell For Adano," 1945 Pulitzer Prize-winner. Then came "Hiroshima," "The Wall," "The Marmot Drive," "A Single Pebble," and now, his latest novel, "The War Lover."

"The War Lover" is a story of contrasts and conflicts: fear and courage, love and hate, morality and immorality. The author's intention and underlying theme are surely moral but the reader must grope beneath the surface narrative, too frequently offensive, to grasp the message.

The story's locale is an American air base in England, the center of action is a bombing mission over the Continent. It is a war story, yes, but it also is something more. It is a story about love, not only the conventional kind, but all kinds of love and what its absence or presence does to men, and what it means to be capable or incapable of love.

Most of the world today longs for lasting peace but places in leaders and governments the responsibility for achieving it. Mr. Hersey hints that the cause of war lies in individual human beings. In developing his thesis, he uses as the central figure, the command pilot of a Flying fortress, the war lover who "loves fighting better than the things he's fighting for." In contrast is the narrator of the story, the war lover's co-pilot who "fights fiercely when he has to, much as he hates it, because he loves what he's fighting for more than himself."

The author's style is a trifle cumbersome, as minute by minute, detail by detail, he describes the events of a bombing raid lasting fifteen hours and thirty-nine minutes. The description doesn't come all at once, but rather in installments. Between accounts of the mission are inserted flashbacks which trace the entire tour from the time the crew reaches England through six and one-half months and twenty-four missions to the climax, the big raid.

Each member of the bomber's crew is examined for weaknesses and strengths, for the effect of war, but the main characters are Buzz Marrow, the war lover; the narrator and co-pilot, young Charles "Bo" Boman; and the English girl, Daphne.

Marrow is the dominant figure; he is also the object lesson. A flying genius, he is awarded the DFC but his arrogance and invulnerability are finally stripped away to reveal abject fear and a sensual love of killing.

We see Boman first as a hero worshipper of Buzz, possessing a vague sense of decency, gradually becoming aware of the real nature of the war lover, learning to improve himself after coming to grips with vice, and more important, learning to know himself. He sums it up in these words: "Marrow in his inner climb toward death, I in my settling down toward life."

Boman falls in love with Daphne and it is she who unmasks the war lover and reveals his flaws. She teaches Bo about love and life, strength and courage. His new-found maturity and insight bring him through the final tragic minutes of the bombing raid climax.

This story has little to do with sentiment or glory or heroism. Mr. Hersey writes with great skill and anyone with World War II flying experience will undoubtedly be impressed by his reproduction of technical details and realistic procedures. While there are passages of almost poetic beauty these are almost obscured by the abundance of obscene words. Most of these are not spelled out, a weak gesture towards delicacy, but the profusion of dashes are unnecessary and tiresome.

In spite of Mr. Hersey's acknowledged stature as a contemporary novelist, it seems to us that he lost his way. Perhaps on one of those innumerable bombing missions. At any rate, he had a strong, a powerful, a moral theme to begin with but seemed only to pick it up once in awhile as an afterthought.

Since flying and airplanes dominate the more than four hundred pages of this book, we would sum it up in like language: it got off the ground but ran into heavy flak; several parachutes failed to open, and it finally ditched in the sea. But the author survived and "The War Lover" is in its sixth week on the best-seller list.

THE OLD SOFT SHOE — Guest stars Donald O'Connor and Carol Lawrence trip the light fantastic with host Gene Kelly (right) on the Saturday, Nov. 21, special colorcast of "The Gene Kelly Show" on the NBC-TV Network.

TE LA DI O

SILENT JAZZ SINGER

One of the biggest television shocks we ever experienced happened the other night when we switched over to WJAC's late movie. At first we thought we had lost our audio, then a caption flickered across the screen and we realized we were "seeing" a relic from the silent cinema era.

It was "The Jazz Singer" starring Al Jolson and if our memory serves us right, this was the first movie with sound. There wasn't much sound, though, all the dialogue consisting of an occasional caption to clue you in on the histrionics. But Jolson sang. And it sounded good. In fact, the entire show was better than the Jerry Lewis version a few weeks ago.

Thinking it over, we wonder if they are beginning to exhaust the supply of old movies. Watch for "Perils of Pauline."

NBC'S TOUR WITH IKE

The three major networks will be covering President Eisenhower's trip to Europe, Africa and Asia. But NBC has logged the tour as follows: Dec. 3 (midnight), departure from Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington; Dec. 4, arrival in Rome and first day there; Dec. 6, visit to Vatican, other functions in Rome; Dec. 9, visits to Turkey, Pakistan and arrival in New Delhi, India.

Dec. 11, President's address at opening of U. S. Agricultural Fair in India; Dec. 14, his trip to the Taj Mahal, visit to Iran and arrival in Athens, Greece; Dec. 16, activities in Athens; Dec. 19, arrival in Paris and preparations for Western summit meeting; Dec. 22, conclusion of summit meeting, visits to Spain and Morocco. And home again, in time for Christmas.

SOCIAL SECURITY IN ACTION

A quarter-hour series of six programs to be presented on WJAC Sundays, 2-2:15 p. m., starting Nov. 22, will give down-to-earth advice for every American family about the protection Social Security provides. Top Hollywood personalities will be featured.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE FILMS

WBEN-TV has purchased a package of ten Shirley Temple films, assuring the present generation of youngsters a chance to see movie's most famous child star in her biggest roles.

The movies are: Heidi, Bright Eyes, Wee Willie Winkle, Poor Little Rich Girl, Just Around the Corner, Little Miss Broadway, Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm, Stowaway, Captain January, and Dimples.

IN OR OUT OF FOCUS

National Television Week is being observed this week, Nov. 15 to

Nov. 21. The theme is "Television: In Focus With Modern America." In view of the sordid TV scandal, this title is either not very apopros or else we are all sick, sick, sick.

CHANNEL CHATTER

DINAH SHORE will take a day off on Sunday, Nov. 29, and Janet Blair will be hostess to guests Craig Stevens, Ginny Tiu, Gene Barry and Spike Jones and his orchestra.

RED BUTTONS will be the star of Ford Startime's "Something Special," Tuesday, Dec. 1.

THE INDESTRUCTIBLE MR. GORE will be a Sunday Showcase special on Dec. 13. William Shatner will portray the late U. S. Senator Thomas Gore of Oklahoma, only blind man ever elected to the Senate. The drama is written by the Senator's grandson, Gore Vidal.

WALTER SLEZAK, Darren McGavin, Henry Daniell, Carmen Mathews and Will Kiluva are being sought to play the roles they portrayed in a Broadway version of "My Three Angels" for a television adaptation by the same name for Ford Startime.

HALLMARK HALL OF FAME will present a full-hour special "Christmas Festival" on Sunday, Dec. 13. Walter Slezak will be featured. SIR ANTHONY EDEN, former THANKSGIVING DAY PARADER — This huge spaceman will be one of the mammoth, helium-filled balloons which are a traditional part of the annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade, to be telecast on the NBC-TV Network Thursday, Nov. 26. Shirley Temple and her children, on the storybook float, will lead the New York holiday procession, which will also include other TV and movie stars, spectacular floats and marching bands.

Television and Radio

By John Crosby

TV'S CONTROVERSIAL CORNER

"I think I've set some kind of record," Harold Rasky will tell you. "I've been in broadcasting for ten years and never had a sponsor."

Rasky's present show is the "U.N. In Action," and the huge United Nations building, which he roams for CBS, is his personal private Radio City.

The U. N., which had vast dreams when it was built, has an immense and beautifully equipped television studio--its equipment equalling that in the RCA building. Mostly--except in a few periods of great crisis--the great built-in TV camera booths, the marvelous control rooms standstill.

Only the "U. N. in Action" goes on week in week out, year in year out, with Harry Rasky who views the delegates pretty much like a talent roster. I found him there the other day shaking hands with a smiling Russian. "He's just become friendly, with the change in mood in Russia. Last year, he never spoke a word. You'd hardly know it was the same man." A moment later Rasky was deep in conversation in the delegates' lounge with a Yugoslavian who made gentle fun of his relations with Russia.

"We're living with the problem--the Iron Curtain and the free world--right here. Yesterday we carried the concert from here. A few weeks ago we had the brother of the Dali Lama on making his television debut.

"This little program, off in a little corner of television, receives much more world attention than any other. We had Foreign Minister Couve de Murville of France on in what seemed a very innocent interview discussing the problem of Algeria. It ended causing quite a stir. All he said was, 'We're ready to negotiate with the FLM.' This was the first time this was said. We got calls immediately from Paris and now the French aren't speaking to me." A few minutes later, a Frenchman passed Rasky looking stiffly straight ahead. "You see," said Rasky, "the French won't talk to me."

Mostly, the "U. N. in Action" is live. Rasky does the show from the delegates' lounge or from the corridors. "The U. N.," says Rasky--and I heartily agree--"is the best TV studio anywhere on earth. Sometimes we tape a show to accommodate the delegates but mostly it's live. The impact of live TV is incredible. I suppose it would be fun to do a program some day that made money," he said wistfully. "But until then, it's nice to do something you know is important."

"Aly Khan, who is the Pakistan delegate, came on the show a week or so ago--and was scared stiff. You see, it's not an interview program like 'Face the Nation.' The interviews are integrated in an attempt to explain what the problems are. Aly Khan spoke about the former Baghdad pact, now called CENTO, because Pakistan is one of the few Asian countries that votes for the U. S. Our program dealt with this pact and how it operates."

The U. N. lounge is an electric meeting place, always full of interesting and frightfully international faces. Rasky explained that U. N. delegates don't have offices at the U. N. Their offices are scattered everywhere around New York except in the U. N. (though eventually there'll be a delegates' office building there). "That's why the delegates' lounge is so important. India can sit down with Pakistan or Russia with Yugoslavia without going through the business of making overtures. A good deal of U. N. business is accomplished informally over drinks or lunch--things that would be awkward if one delegate had to call up another and make an appointment. That's the real value of the U. N.--a meeting place.

"This place is going to get more important with the advent of space

A PROCLAMATION approving the 53rd annual Christmas Seal Sale, which opened November 16th, was signed locally this week by Burgess William E. Rice, seated.

With him are Warren County Tuberculosis and Health Society officials Gerald Coates (l.), campaign chairman, and Al Chiamonte, society president.

travel. The delegates have got to start thinking about such things as the contamination of the moon, about the sites for international launching pads, about the right of way in space--where else can such things be discussed except right here?

"Wouldn't it be nice if 'U. N. in Action' got put in one of the time spots vacated by one of the quizzes? I do think there's a trend that way. This year for the first time they're carrying the documentaries like 'CBS Reports' at night. So I think good things are going to happen."

PUBLIC EVENTS

CHRISTMAS GIFT BOOKS . . . be available to everyone tomorrow (Friday) and Saturday at the Book Fair, sponsored by the Warren County Club. The fair will be held at the Wetmore Gallery of the Warren Public Library from 1 to 9 p.m. today, and from 10 to 5 on Saturday. The fair will exhibit many books for adults, as well as children. Books for children will be displayed in age groups so that those looking for books will be able to locate them easily. Many beautiful picture books for the pre-school child will be on hand for the choosing. Miss Ann Sasser, children's librarian of the Warren Public Library, will be on hand to aid in the selection of the right book for each child on your Christmas list.

Many books of special subjects will be available and any title may be ordered. The books that are chosen by each purchaser will be delivered immediately and will be delivered to the buyer in time for Christmas giving. Books may be picked up either at the time of purchase or upon delivery. Come in and browse around through this fine exhibit of books for Christmas giving.

RESERVED TICKETS may be obtained at the downtown ticket office located at 344 Pennsylvania, W., next door to Mack's News and for the Canadian Players' production of "The Cherry Orchard" and "The Taming of the Shrew", to be presented Saturday, Nov. 28, in Beaty school auditorium. Tickets may also be secured in all Warren county high schools and junior high schools, the B & B Smoke Shop and United Cigar Store, Warren; Sheffield Pharmacy, Sheffield; Youngsville Pharmacy, Youngsville; Sabella Confectionery, Tidioute; and in Jamestown, at the Briggs Piano Store.

"The Cherry Orchard" is to be given at a matinee, with seats at $1.10 and $2.20. The evening performance, "The Taming of the Shrew", will be $2.20 and $3.30 for seats. A special student ticket price of 75 cents has been set for the afternoon performance.

Any profit made on the appearance of the Jaycee-sponsored Canadian Players' production, will be donated to a fund for the construction of a community swimming pool.

SCHOOL AND HOME CAN ENCOURAGE FREE READING

"A house without books is like a room without windows. No man has a right to bring up his children without surrounding them with books if he has the means to buy them. The love of knowledge comes with reading and grows upon it."

Horace Mann

A broad survey of parental interest in children's reading showed that the greatest need felt by parents is for guidance in helping their children enjoy reading and in finding the right books for home reading.

This desire for help with children's reading is the school's opportunity to improve the free reading of children. Free reading should be good reading. Teachers can talk with parents about the importance of home reading and make suggestions for encouraging it. They can pass on to parents what research tells us about children's reading interests and the literary qualities children like to find in their stories. They can help parents understand how good reading helps a child in all levels of his schooling and suggest the right kinds of books for children.

Giving children a love of good reading and making books readily available for free reading are two of the most effective things the school and the home can do to help children enjoy reading.

Schools should set a definite time for free reading and provide the right kinds of material.

Parents can begin to build a child's library early so that he associates enjoyable experiences with well-loved books from his earliest years. Families should add to the home library regularly at birthdays, Christmas, and other occasions.

Parents can read to and with children. Read to the younger children. Take turns reading with the older children. Help them over the hard words. Explain new words and concepts and words with multiple meanings.

Teachers can interest children in learning about the authors of their favorite books. Watch for news items about authors, new books by them, and book-author luncheons. Check the community for any authors who may live there.

Parents can help a child to keep his own library in some kind of organized arrangement. For example, group together books of biography, fiction, or poetry. Make a simple design for a bookplate that a child can duplicate and use in his books.

When a child's classic is seen on television, teachers should suggest that children read the story in its original form.

Books are the perfect gift for everyone, especially for children. Give books and recommend that others give them. Ask your public library for lists of good books for children.

Children are full of questions that can be answered by consulting reference materials. Children should get the habit of using reference materials in the home as well as at school.

In an era when reading has so much competition for a child's time, it is doubly important that the school and the home recognize the importance of reading and take an active role in improving children's free reading.

INTRAMURAL BALL UNDER WAY

Boy's intramural basketball has begun at WHS under the supervision of Mr. Harry Danielson, instructor at the high school. The intramural division gives the boys who do not make the varsity squad an opportunity to compete in the hardwood game. A very good turnout is reported for this year's program.

The lassies have also taken the gym floor as the Girl's Intramural slate has started. The fairer sex plays a different style of "round" ball, having offensive and defensive teams which do not cross the mid-court line -- strange tactics, but the gals enjoy it.

SEARCHING FOR SPONSOR

A fourth team of the Y City League is presently searching for a backer for the '59 cage season. At a meeting held Tuesday evening league president, Nick Creola, announced that four teams will comprise this year's loop, the first tussles scheduled to begin on Monday, Nov. 30, at 7 and 8 p.m.

Members of this fine array of talent are John Harrington, speedy guard; Tom Letrent, a lefty who likes to ball-hawk; Chick Stewart, one of Warren's speed merchants;

Larry Lawton, a young up-and-coming rebounder; the set-shooting Chuck Still; Rich McClement, another Lefty who sports a good one-handed shot; Joe Hughes and Steve Lucky, newcomers to the local basketball circles; Boone Sturdevant, who likes to harass his opponents with flying jump shots; and a couple more hoopsters who will be named at a later date.

One aspect of the pre-season talk, which will surely benefit the league, is the organization of a group of qualified officials which will handle the games this year. Tony Tomasoni will head the whistle-blowers which includes Ricky Scalise, Fred Marsh, Carm Colosimo, and John Berardi.

BAT COMPANY ORGANIZED

Littner "Sody" Soderstrom, Jamestown businessman and longtime baseball addict, and Tommy Henrich, former New York Yankee star, have recently formed a new baseball bat company which will operate plants in Jamestown and, possibly, in Warren.

"Sody" has been working the past five years to perfect a bat different from the presently used models which will not sting upon impact with a ball. The club which he and Henrich plan to market will have a life expectancy of about twice that of the current sticks. The pair plans to begin operations early in 1960.

An experimental model was used by several major leaguers in the 1959 campaign and all responded graciously to its performance. The "stingless" bat is made possible through a handling process of the wood that goes into the finished product.

NIMRODS NOTE

The Pennsylvania Forest Rangers have recently made public their list of the best deer hunting areas in the Allegheny National Forest for the 1959 hunting season. The best prospects are Limestone and Cherry Grove townships in Warren County, Millstone and Spring townships in Elk County, Jenks and Howe townships in Forest County, and Hamilton and Lafayette townships in McKean County.

Due to the successive doe seasons held by the Game Commission, this year's bucks are reported to be carrying larger racks and the overall sizes of the white tails are larger. The roadless areas of the Forest are recommended to the nimrods for the greatest success. For the first time in years the Forest Service is opening logging roads to aid the distribution of hunters throughout the Forest. The season is scheduled to begin on Monday, Nov. 30.

THE APPOINTMENT of William "Bill" Weaver as the tire department sales manager in the Warren Montgomery Ward store was announced publicly this week.

He has been transferred here from Morgantown, W. Va., where he has been tire salesman for the past seven years.

Mr. Weaver is a graduate of Morgantown high school, attended the University of West Virginia and served for three years with the United States Air Force.

THE 25-CENT INTERNATIONAL air mail stamp, for use on airmail matter to Asia, Australia and most of Africa, will be first placed on sale at San Francisco, Calif., on April 22, 1960.

This new stamp will be similar in format and presentation to the 15-cent international airmail stamp which was first placed on sale today in New York, N.Y., and which featured an upper view of the Statue of Liberty, and the inscription "Liberty For All".

The 25-cent air mail will feature a three-quarter portrait of Abraham Lincoln, with a quotation from his Gettysburg Address: "Of the People, By the People, For the People" around the sides and top (as pictured).

It was prepared by Herb Lubalin, vice president and executive art director of Sudler & Hennessey, Inc., in New York. The lettering was the work of John Pistilli, head of lettering and design at Sudler & Hennessey, and the portrait of Lincoln was done by Joseph Lomberero, prominent illustrator, associated with Frank Koste Associates of New York. William H. Buckley, an artist member of the Stamp Advisory Committee, supervised the actual designing.

The stamps will measure 0.84 by 1.44 inches in dimension, arranged horizontally, and issued in sheets of 50 subjects.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations of the 25-cent international air mail stamp may send addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, San Francisco 1, Calif.

A NEW ONE. A Tasting Bee is to be sponsored by the Dessert Club of the YWCA starting at 4:45 p.m. Friday, December 11th. The proceeds are to go toward the erection of an outside bulletin board at the "Y".
The club hopes the public will enjoy this new type of meal. Members of the YW will be contacted to make a favorite tureen or dessert to form a buffet type meal. Those attending will pay a nominal amount for each taste, and may have as many as they wish. The entire community is asked to patronize this new and novel affair.

On the committee are Mrs. James Nordine, Mrs. Sam Gigliotti, Mrs. Ned Lauffer, Mrs. Carl Berglund, Mrs. Ralph Sandberg, Mrs. Karl Timm. (Mrs. Sandberg was not present for the picture.)

RIGGED EXAM PAYS CARIBBEAN PROBLEM

RIGGED EXAM PAYS

We didn't see it in any area papers but the Christian Science Monitor carried an interesting quiz story from Freehold, N.J. A history teacher in the Freehold high school became perturbed after his students indicated in class discussion that they saw nothing wrong with quiz contestants accepting answers.

He held a very stiff examination and tipped off nine students that the answers could be found on his desk. All of them had a look.

The nine had perfect marks in the examination and the class was told about it. Those who did not do well in the examination, which was most of the class, objected strongly. They said it was unfair.

Said the teacher, "All right, we will now have another discussion on rigged TV quiz shows."

He reported that most of them changed their opinions.

THE CARIBBEAN PROBLEM

The November 14 issue of The Nation offers some interesting ideas on the weapons situation that plagues this country in the Caribbean these days. Here it goes:

ARMS IN THE CARIBBEAN

Except when the whole world is at war, there is never a shortage of armaments, and whoever is willing and able to pay the price can have about anything he wants. The State Department, nervous about events in the Caribbean, has been trying to shut off the supply of weapons to that area. It will have to try harder. The Trujillo regime in the Dominican "Republic" has put itself in hock to the tune of $50 million (spent principally in Europe) for weapons. Fidel Castro is incensed because our State Department has interfered with his purchase of British Hunter jets for the Cuban air force. It is a safe bet that he will get his jets, somehow, somewhere. The channels for arms of all kinds are devious. Norway sold a half-million-dollar shipment of American arms, supplied for the defense of the anti-Communist world, to Batista. By the time the arms were shipped, the purchaser was in flight for his life, and Castro got the merchandise. Up to March, 1958, the United States supplied Batista directly; that is one of Castro's grievances against us.

At present it is reported that Spanish and Italian arms are reaching the Caribbean, some on credit. In 1959, the British sold about 1,000,000 surplus small arms, the Italians some 500,000 Carcano carbines, and Sweden large stocks of Mauser carbines -- all to U. S. dealers. Surplus rifles are selling in this country for about $15, or less than one-fifth of a new American hunting rifle. The efforts of the State Department may be praiseworthy, if belated, but it would be hazardous to wager on their success, especially as the NATO nations are among the chief purveyors of lethal merchandise, and the West Germans are only starting to get into big production. On the one hand, Washington encourages the flow of arms; on the other, it seeks to divert it from dangerous areas. The task would be difficult even if we had a consistent policy; our vacillation makes it almost impossible. Perhaps the best chance for success would lie in the creation of an international arms-control agency, acting under the aegis of the U.N. and deriving its powers from an arms-control convention.
